THE GREAT WHEAT BELT.

While there is a marvellous similarity of soil throughout the great wheat belt, extending from the head of the Red River in Minnesota to the head of the Saskatchewan in the Rocky Mountains, there are, as already said, very considerable differences in climatic and other conditions. The great and striking climatic difference between the extreme south eastern part of the wheat belt in the Red River Valley and the extreme northwestern part comprised in the Western portion of the Saskatchewan valley, is the chinook wind. The chinook is the local name given to the west wind which blowing off the warm waters of the North Pacific carries a share of their warmth far inland, even over the mountain ranges of British Columbia. The chinook differs from the most west wind that blows off the North Atlantic carrying warmth and moisture over Northern Europe, in that it has lost its moisture in passing over the mountain ranges intervening between the coast and the plains. The chinook is dry as well as warm, and the warmer because it is dry. It carries its warmth much further out on the plains than would be possible if it held moisture. The force of the chinook varies in various parts of the west, but its character of a mild, dry west wind is always the same. In Southern Alberta where the land is very high, sloping easterly and northerly from the still higher plains of Montana and Wyoming and where the intervening mountains are comparatively low, the west wind blows strongly in winter and in summer. It clears the snow off in winter making an excellent range for cattle the year round, but its drying effect in summer tends against success in grain growing. Further north when the drainage basin of the North Saskatchewan is reached, the elevation of the country is less and the intervening mountains are higher. Consequently the chinook is not so strongly felt as in the south. The winter climate is modified, not reversed as in the range country, and the summer rainfall is sufficient for all the purposes of agriculture. There is a park like growth of timber which shelters from the wind, so that the blizzards which blow so fiercely over the great bare eastern plains is here unknown. The snow comes late in the fall. There is generally good sleighing from about Christmas until the latter part of March. The snow is seldom drifted and never crusts. Outdoor duties are attended to without danger or discomfort all winter long. There are cold snaps of course, but they are generally of short duration, and mild weather predominates, but winter thaws are practically unknown.

It is a well established fact that the western part of the Saskatchewan valley has an ideal winter, owing to the influence of the chinook. That influence extends much further north, and is felt even more strongly on the Peace River than on the Saskatchewan, so that the winter climate of that region from latitude 55 to 59 presents very little variation from that on the Saskatchewan in latitude 53. These are high latitudes compared with those of the agricultural sections of the Atlantic coast of North America, but are no higher than those at which agriculture is practicable and profitable in Northwestern Europe, which is similarly affected by the warm wind blowing off the Gulf stream. Edmonton, on the Saskatchewan, is in the same latitude as Liverpool, England, and St. Petersburg, the capital of Russia, in latitude 60 much further north than any part even of the Peace River country.

As the region affected by the chinook lies along the base of the Rockies and the slope of the country is easterly it is necessarily at a comparatively high elevation above the sea, and this coupled with its northern latitude is apt to create the impression that the combination of high latitude and altitude makes the climate unsuitable for wheat. To prove that these influences are balanced by the effect of the chinook it needs only to be shown that wheat is grown successfully all the way from the international boundary in latitude 49 to Fort Vermilion, on Peace River, in latitude 58 1/2, a distance of 702 miles from south to north. The indisputable proof of successful growth of wheat is the existence and operation of four mills, at various points throughout this great distance. There is a mill at Cardston and another at Raymond a very few miles north of the international boundary, one at Wetaskiwin, one at Leduc, one at St. Boniface, one at Edmonton, one at Fort Saskatchewan, and one at Morinville. These last six are all in the drainage basin of the Saskatchewan; and all but one—Wetaskiwin—within a radius of twenty miles of Edmonton, in latitude 53 1/2. Two of them, Fort Saskatchewan and Morinville are twenty miles from the existing railway. All the mills mentioned are roller process and at this season are running night and day. Their product holds the local market against the competition of the great mills of Manitoba and competes with them in the common market of British Columbia. At Peace River Crossing in latitude 56 there is a steam mill grinding local wheat to supply the home demand, and at Vermilion, further down Peace River in latitude 58 1/2 is a fifty barrel roller process mill grinding on last season's crop. It may not be out of place to mention that a steam grist mill was first established at Vermilion in 1886, so that the growth of wheat there is not an experiment. Wheat is also grown and ground into flour at Fort Providence on the Mackenzie river in latitude 61, 150 miles further north than Vermilion. These facts establish a wide range of climatic possibility under the moderating influence of the chinook, and prove conclusively that the Saskatchewan valley is far within the northern limit of the growth of wheat, and indeed in its western part is only midway between the possibilities existing at the international boundary and those of the lower Peace River at Fort Vermilion.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Commercial, Feb. 28.

Manitoba wheat has been very quiet all the week. There has been very little demand, and at the same time no pressure of offers to sell. At the close of business yesterday prices on the week may be about 1-4c higher for spot and 1-4c lower for May. There is no feature to the trade, which is practically a waiting one. We quote values for spot or early delivery at 74 1-4c 1 hard, 72 1-4c 1 Nor., 70 3-4c 2 Nor., and 68 3-4c 3 Nor., and for May delivery, 76 1-4c 1 hard, 74 1-4c 1 Nor., 72c 2 Nor., and 70 1-4c 3 Nor.; all in store, Fort William, Port Arthur or Duluth.

Oats.—The market for oats has firmed up a little and sellers are now asking 1-4 to 1-2c more than last week. Receipts are light and as there are some demand for shipment, oat holders are not disposed to accept the prices offered here. Enquiries for seed oats are beginning to come in freely. No. 1 white in carlots on track are today worth 30 1-2 to 31c per bushel; No. 2 white, 28 1-2 to 29c, and feed grades, 27 to 27 1-2c. Farmers' loads on the street are bringing 26c, and at country points, 25c. Brokers are asking 25 to 26c for carlots in the country.

Barley.—The market is firm and the movement light. Dealers are paying 31 to 32c per bushel for feed grades on the street here.

Hogs.—Receipts have increased to much larger proportions than has been the case for some time, and the market is easier at 51-2 to 52c for choice weights ranging from 150 to 250 lbs., off cars here. Heavy hogs and light fats, 41-2 to 5c, according to quality.

PROTECT THE BUFFALO.

The Bulletin has received the following communication from a reliable correspondent at Fort Resolution on Great Slave lake, dealing with the matter of protection of the wood buffalo, which range west of Fort Smith. The letter is dated Jan. 4th, 1903.

A few words regarding the protection of the buffalo. Having interviewed several of the Indians on that subject, all seem to say with certainty that no buffalo calves were seen following the main herd. It is the general impression of those Indians that calves follow in their wake and kill off the young calves. A reliable Indian, not very long ago told me of a particular night last November when camped close by where the buffalo were feeding that he could not sleep on account of so many wolves howling. Now I can very well understand the object of our government in prohibiting any Indian or white hunter from killing any of them. But for the life of me I cannot see where anything is made or gained by so doing, when hundreds of wolves have what we call in French, car's blanche, and are free to kill and destroy all the young calves every year. I would suggest that our government give a premium to all those who kill any of those wolves that are continually after the main herd, winter and summer. These buffalo have a certain range which they never leave. This premium could be so arranged through the members of the N. W. M. P. or any justice office of peace. I am sure the latter would only be too glad to lend their assistance, free of charge, should the government not interfere with their business. Hoping that this will meet the approval of our game guardians.

Our country is once more free of measles or any other epidemic, and long may it remain so.

WHAT WE DO WE DO RIGHT.

* * * *

WE ARE HEADQUARTERS FOR CHINA, GLASS, CROCKERY.

* * * *

OUR STOCK is probably the largest in Western Canada. OUR PATTERNS are the most attractive that modern pottery can produce. OUR PRICES are the very lowest at which standard goods can be sold.

FOR TEN DOLLARS

We can give a very attractive Dinner Set of 97 pieces. This is not the nameless, "cheap and nasty" kind usually offered at about this figure, but is high grade ware, every piece stamped with the name of Johnson Bros., one of the best English potteries, and the pattern is particularly neat and attractive.

OUR HIGHER PRICED GOODS

Are equally good values with the above. We have sets of from 97 to 129 pieces, bearing the impression of such potters as Copeland, Johnson, Ridgway, Minton, at $12.50, $13, $15, $16, $18.50, $20, $28.50, $30, $40.

IN CHINA

We have some of the choicest productions of French and English potteries, either in tea sets at from $6 to $20, or in separate pieces. The favorite old Blue Willow pattern, cups, saucers, and plates, fine china, several shapes, two shades of blue, either singly or in sets.

IN GLASSWARE

We have tumblers from 50c a dozen up to genuine full flint cut at $4. We have a handsome cut tumbler at $2.75 a dozen. We have forty different lines of wine and whisky glasses.

Port, Sherry, Champagne Glasses, cut flint, either plain or engraved, $1.50 to $6 a dozen. Decanters and Spirit Jugs, 60c to $6 each.

WEST BEAVER LAKE.

A heavy snow storm occurred here on the first instant. Upward of six inches of snow fell. Immediately preceding this snow fall the prairies were almost denuded of snow. Sliding was practically done. The road to town this winter goes by way of Hastings and Cooking lakes via Ball's saw mill, straight on to Strathcona. The only hills on this route are at the crossing of Mill Creek, east of Strathcona and the distance is but 41 miles. McCauley's saw mill is running day and night. Quite a little town is established at the little mill in the hills, northeast of Hastings lake.

Robarge's sawing outfit northwest of Beaver lake, and north of Ross Creek, is doing a rushing business this winter.

The Ladies Aid of the Presbyterian church at Tofteld held a special meeting at the school house which was a great success.

Real estate is booming. R. W. Williams is in the business here.

Both Tofteld and Northern public schools are yet closed. It appears that they cannot find teachers to fill the positions, i. e. that can show the qualification required.

Bachelors are still plentiful. It is reported, however, that two of our young men are about to enter the realm of nubility felicity. Much joy to them and theirs.

A surprise is in store for the residents of Tofteld. Watch for it.

A grand social was held at Northern public school house on Friday evening last by the society of Busy Bees. That the hive is a busy and prosperous one was shown by the report that the secretary, Miss Lizzy Mitchell, read showing a good state of finances and the good purposes to which the funds are expended. An excellent programme of music, songs, recitations and dialogues was presented, which gave the crowded house delight for two hours. A delectable supper was provided and the entertained went away much satisfied mentally and physically to dance away the mid-night hours in tripping the light fantastic at the home of Mr. Louis Johnson. It was proved that besides making (honey) money the Busy Bees could perform the mystic whirl and merry step to perfection and to the enjoyment of many a heart-diseased swain.

The bridge over Hastings and Ketchikan creeks have been completed. It remains for the grading to be done when excellent crossings will have been provided by a generous and large-hearted government to the deserving citizens of this district.

ST. ALBERT.

Our convent, has been again, visited by death. At the end of December Rev. Mother Dandurand, superior of all the northern missions, returning from the east, after a prolonged absence, found her able assistant, in a delicate condition, who had the painful duty to convey her remains to the ground on New Year's eve.

This time the unsurpassing death has cut off the days of the youngest member of the Grey Nuns' order of these regions in the person of Rev. Sister Adele Denno in the twenty-second year of her age, after only a few hours illness.

To Rev. Mother Dandurand and her worthy order we convey our most sincere sympathy.

WILFORD.

For some time past we, like the rest of the districts, have been enjoying this exceptionally fine weather. The snow being more plentiful up through this part leaves the roads much better than nearer town. Yet the snow is settling fast, and a few more days of such fine weather may leave our roads not the best for heavy loads.

T. Cinnamon and his sister, Mrs. Elsey are visiting in this district at present.

James Hamilton has been for some time past confined to his home. As yet he is unable to go out, but we hope soon to see him out again.

Last Sunday, Feb. 22nd, the Methodist minister from Star, held divine service at the home of Mr. Kawke, Sr. A large number were present considering the short notice given. On March 8th we shall again have service, in the morning at W. Cinnamon's, at 11 a. m. and in Wilford school house at 3 p. m.

A large moose was seen a short time ago in our vicinity. This is the first that has been seen around here for some time and probably had some of our experts in that line seen it, it might have stayed. But it passed on unhurt. O. B. Box 488, Winnipeg, Man. Feb. 25.

HIGH SCHOOL LIBRARY.

A meeting of the High School Literary society was held yesterday afternoon. The president Miss Moore, opened the proceedings with a short address. The programme was as follows:

Plano solo, "Pierrette," Miss Clara Oliver.

Duet, "Juanita," Misses Ingalls and Richardson.

Reading of paper by the editor, Miss Rose Dunlop.

Solo, "Fairies," Miss Mary McCauley. Debate, "Resolved that the time has come in the history of Canada when railroads should no longer receive either land or cash grants." Affirmative: T. Mitchell and A. Huff. Negative: E. Peters and B. Goodridge.

Remarks by the critic, Mr. Sifton, assistant teacher. "God save the King."
